

EDITORIAL

The current issue of the Journal of Anatomical Sciences contains 22 reports of well researched and reviewed scientific papers that will appeal to many readers of the journal. Most articles are from the major areas of Anatomical Sciences. There is a good spread of local and foreign papers. This attests to the growing popularity and visibility of our journal.

We are glad to inform you that online submission of articles is now a reality. Thus, high quality, cutting-edge research reports and constructive comments are welcomed from our readers and authors. We are currently working on indexing our publication with more reputable indexing bodies thus increasing our visibility. Your patronage of this journal is highly appreciated.
